Remarks of Mr. MERRICK, (revised) Monday, Feb. 10, in relation to taxing property beyond the limits of the State.

Mr. MERRICK thought it would be best to leave the section as it stood in the report of the committee. He said there were some descriptions of property beyond the limits of Maryland and owned by some of her citizens, which our revenue laws could not reach, and any attempt to tax which would be ridiculous, yet there were other kinds of property, particularly public stocks of other States and counties, equally beyond our limits, which, if owned by resident citizens of Maryland, we could and did make subject to our revenue laws with advantage to our Treasury, as well as to the benefit of the value of our own State stocks. The effect of this clause as it stood would be to leave to the Legislature full discretionary power over the subject, they would exercise that discretion wisely and with due reference to the circumstances which may exist at the time they may be called upon to act—and it is certainly not to be inferred because the Legislature have full power over this subject, and have to choose between a wise policy and a foolish attempt to reach property which cannot be reached—that they will do the foolish thing, as some of the arguments seem to imply. I think very differently of our State Legislatures. By engrafting upon the section the amendment proposed, you tie up the Legislature, and deprive them of the power to do that which may be wise, proper, and salutary, because you fear they might attempt that which is ridiculous. I have heard of an attempt on the part of some citizens of this State to evade the payment of their fair proportion of the taxes necessary for public purposes—by selling their Maryland State stocks which are subjected by our laws to taxation, and purchasing and holding in its place the stocks of other States; this attempt seems to be improper, and one, the success of which should be prevented by subjecting such foreign stocks to taxation equally with our own—but make the amendment now proposed, and you take away from the Legislature the power to do this. He should, for these reasons, vote against this and similar amendments, and for the section as it now stands.
